

Daniel Q. Estep, Ph.D.

Dr. Estep received his doctorate in Psychology with a specialization in animal behavior from the University of Florida. He is certified by the Animal Behavior Society as an Applied Animal Behaviorist. He is a member of several professional and scholarly organizations including the Animal Behavior Society and the National Animal Control Association, and he holds affiliate membership status in the American Veterinary Medical Association and the Colorado Veterinary Medical Association. He taught animal behavior classes to undergraduate, graduate, and veterinary students for 16 years at the University of Georgia. He has written over 40 scientific publications dealing with animal behavior and has given numerous lectures to professional and lay organizations including the National Animal Control Association, The American Humane Association, The Humane Association of the United States and The American Animal Hospital Association. He is currently co-owner and Vice-President of Animal Behavior Associates, Inc., an animal behavior consulting firm in Denver, Colorado.